AAPM&R Honoraria and Reimbursement Policy

Participation in AAPM&R educational activities is voluntary. Serving as course director or faculty for an AAPM&R educational activity requires considerable time and effort. The AAPM&R gratefully recognizes this contribution of its faculty. An honorarium is a one-time payment made to an individual as recognition of their contribution in an Academy educational activity.

Honorarium amounts are determined by the Medical Education Committee (MEC), using factors such as course type (i.e. hands-on), length of the course, and level of participation.

The AAPM&R will pay honoraria in accordance with the below maximum amounts:

 Note, invited sessions include skills labs, learning center and didactic sessions developed by the Program Planning Committee (i.e., not submitted through the call for proposals).

A higher honorarium amount may also be approved on a case-by-case basis, based on the specific needs of the course, the unique expertise or qualifications of the faculty that is requested, or if a new course type is implemented. Alternative honoraria requests must be submitted by the course directors for review by the MEC Chair and, if needed for budgetary purposes, the treasurer.

Faculty who agree to participate in an AAPM&R educational activity are obligated to make reasonable efforts to meet deadlines for submitting CME materials and participate in the course itself. Honoraria may be reduced or even withheld from course faculty if the directors report that the faculty did not meet their obligations. In instances where a course director does not fulfill his or her obligations, the MEC Chair and the President will review the appropriateness of paying full honoraria to the course director.

Honoraria is not provided for the development of enduring materials, but may be approved for specific products. In lieu of an honorarium, complimentary access may be provided to the authoring faculty, but will need prior approval.

Honoraria will not be provided for journal or manuscript review CME.
All honoraria will be paid directly by AAPM&R (or a designated educational partner), following the faculty member’s participation in the activity. All faculty members are required to attest that they have not and will not accept any honoraria, additional payments or reimbursements directly from a commercial entity for their participation in an AAPM&R CME activity.
